SCHOOL MASS MEETING ADJOURNED WITHOUT ACTION UNTIL NEXT THURSDAY NIGHT

Advisory Committee's Report Leads to Lengthy Speeches by Opponents of Bond Issue Asked for, to Meet Class Room Congestions

CLOTURE RULE IS TO BE ENFORCED

Audience Begins to Disintegrate Before Flow of Oratory Is Ended With Adjournment on Motion of Colonel Everington

A handful of about 125 citizens out of a poulation of 36,000 gathered at the Wilson Avenue school Thursday night to hear the report of an advisory committee of fifteen relative to the sum needed for a building program to relieve congestion in the public schools. The meeting adjourned without action until next Thursday.

The report, which recommended a bond issue of $447,675, was presented by the chairman of the advisory committee, W. E. Hewitt, together with statistics relative to school enrollment, class rooms, valuation of school plants, bond issues outstanding, all of which will be published in detail later in the columns of this paper.

A motion to discuss the report item by item made by J. R. Gray and seconded by O. M. Newby was lost. A subsequent motion by Peter Ferry to consider the report as a whole, seconded by W. C. Wattles, was finally tabled after lengthy speeches by Gray, J. C. Sherer, and George B. Woodberry. A motion by Col. James Everington finally prevailed that "the committee by instructed to secure as much publicity for the report as possible through the newspapers and request letters, criticisms and comment from the public, and that when we get together next time a time limit be set on oratory."

The chairman had used his best endeavors without success to hold the speakers to the business in hand and cut out long dissertations on modern systems of education and their cost. Yielding to pressure for the adoption of the Everington motion he named next Thursday evening for a mass meeting at the same hour and place to take action on the report, a considerable proportion of the audience having departed before adjournment took place.

EARLY MORNING FOG CAUSES ACCIDENTS

Barney Miller's Auto and Bus Collide in the Mist; Other Collisions

Barney Miller of 1046 Florida street, Los Angeles, and Mrs. L. Woodard, 107 East Los Feliz, were injured in an automobile accident which occurred at 7:45 o'clock this morning at the intersection of Cypress and Brand, between Miller's auto and the P. E. bus. Miller, who was cut about the face and head, and who was rendered unconscious by the collision, was taken to the Glendale sanitarium by a passing motorist and Mrs. Woodard, who was riding in the P. E. bus, was taken to her home.

When the accident happened, Miller was traveling north on Brand and the Pacific Electric bus, which was driven by R. R. Stubbs, 408 Arden, was going west on Cypress. The auto hit the bus with such force, the police claim, that the two and a half ton vehicle was knocked more than seven feet to one side and the body was moved two and a half inches from the center of the chassis.

When questioned this morning at the hospital, according to local police, Mr. Miller said:

"I don't know how the accident happened. The fog was pretty heavy and I was leaning out at the side of the machine, as I was unable to see well through the windshield. When I first saw the bus I did not know what it was. By the time I recognized it it was too late to stop."

Automobiles belonging to H. C. Jackson of Eagle Rock and a person whose name could not be learned, came together at the corner of Brand and San Fernando at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Little damage was done.

Paul C. Rand of 411 North Central and Katherine Steffett, 457 North Stocker, collided at the corner of Brand and Palmer at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. No one was injured.

Sengman G. Smith, 416 West Wilson, was driving a car that tangled bumpers with Moran Stevens of Los Angeles at the corner of Brand and Gardena at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. The damage was slight.

DISCRIMINATION IN TAX CHARGED BY GRAVEL MEN

That the owners of trucks that are hauling sand and gravel in Glendale are being discriminated against, was the assertion made before the Glendale city council last night by H. J. McIntyre, 1428 East California, who operates a truck for this purpose in this city.

"It doesn't seem fair to us," said Mr. McIntyre, "that we should be taxed when trucks hauling lumber, gasoline, oil and every other kind of commodity can be operated without the owners paying anything in the way of a tax or assessment.

"We can prove that on account of the wide tires that we have on our trucks the damage we do to the streets is far less than that done by practically all of the other trucks. This is the only city in this section that has a tax for sand and gravel trucks, and we feel that either something in the way of relief should be given to us or a tax should be placed on all trucks operating in Glendale."

"I believe the gentleman is right," said Councilman Lapham. "We have no right to tax sand and gravel trucks and permit all other trucks to go untaxed."

The taxes that are paid by the sand and gravel truck men at this time amount to $40 per year.

On motion of Councilman Stephenson, the matter was referred to the committee of the whole.

"This does not mean that this question is being pigeonholed," Councilman Lapham assured the petitioners. "We are taking it in the committee of the whole in order that we can give the question more careful attention."

$25 BANQUET IS DISCUSSED BY ROTARIANS

Dr. C. L. Marlenee and George B. Karr Speak on Service Plan

At the regular meeting of the Rotary club of Glendale, held at the chamber of commerce auditorium Thursday noon, with Roy L. Kent presiding, Dr. C. L. Marlenee and George B. Karr, representing Glendale Community Service, were present and spoke regarding a plan to put on a $25 dinner for raising the remainder of the budget necessary for the Community Service activities in Glendale. The following committee of five was appointed to take part in this campaign and will meet with similar committees from the Exchange and Kiwanis clubs: Charles Cooper, Ernest Ford, Jack Huntley, George Karr and Dan Kelty.

The meeting was one of the best attended sessions the club has ever held, there being 45 members and guests present. The regular song leader, France Henry, was absent, and Owen Emery was delegated to lead. Among the visiting Rotarians were W. D. Graham of Monmouth, Ill., John Bell of Pasadena, J. W. Johnson of Pueblo, Colo., and the other guests included George Black of Seattle, Dr. W. Z. Newton of Glendale, Dr. Charles Marlenee of Glendale Exchange club, N. C. Hayhurst and A. L. Ferguson of Glendale Union high school.

A wire was received from Harry Webb, sent en route to New York city. Mr. Webb is to be away for three weeks on business. A communication was received from the chamber of commerce asking that a representative from the Rotary club be appointed to serve on the chamber of commerce civic committee. J. I. Wernette was named by President Roy Kent.

All Rotarians were invited to attend a 6:30 o'clock dinner to be given by the Verdugo Hills council of Boy Scouts of America. At this meeting a report of Scout activities during the past year will be submitted.

Attention was called to the convention to be held in June at St. Louis, six members expressing their intention of attending. Group 5, with Ruie Downing as chairman, was delegated as a reception committee for January. George Karr reported on a trip to Burbank as a representative of the Glendale Rotary club to inaugurate the Burbank Rotary club. Mr. Crawford will act as their first president and Mr. Sanderson as secretary. J. Herbert Smith thanked the club for birthday remembrance, as did also Jack Huntley, these two having had birthday anniversaries since the last club meeting. All members were very happy to welcome the return of Bill Howe, who has been quite ill. Dr. Fay Stone was welcomed to membership in the club.

The visiting Rotarians were called upon for a few words and responded with complimentary remarks regarding the club spirit. Program for the week was in charge of Group 4, Owen Emery, chairman, who presented Normal C. Hayhurst, physical director of Glendale high school, who spoke on the subject, "Physical Education of Boys" as covered by the compulsory physical education laws of California. He said: "In public school physical education California leads every state in the Union, the school requirements as specified in the state law being for two 60-minute periods per week. Glendale requires one 60-minute period to every student per day, instead of two weekly periods, as compulsory. This period is divided as follows: Eight minutes for dressing for gymnasium and 12 minutes for shower and dressing, the balance of the time being given to games and exercises."

An athletic exhibition boxing bout was put on between Allan Pollock and Harry Bennett, both high school students about 18 years of age. Burt Aageson acted as referee and Coach Hayhurst as timekeeper. The exhibition was good, both boys showing that they had received good training. An exhibition of physical drill work was given by Burt Aageson, Bob Searles, Harold Whitaker and Theodore Haig.

MARY, CONTRARY, COMES TO CITY AGAIN

Mary Gibbs, the runaway girl of 605 Rosemont avenue, Los Angeles, was in Glendale again last night. This time she brought her friend, the old bay mare, with her.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night O. M. Mason and R. W. Rickard of a local private police, found Mary wandering along one of the streets of Glendale leading her most recent acquisition.

The officers took Mary to the local police headquarters. She refused to tell where she picked up the horse or how she happened to get to Glendale.

At 11:30 o'clock Mary's mother and brother came to Glendale and took her down to the juvenile department in Los Angeles.

TAX SLACKING IS ARRAIGNED BY REALTORS

Board Joins in Appreciation of Work of Chobe's "Peacock"

The Glendale Realty Board, at its meeting Thursday noon, went on record as being in favor of amending the constitution of the United States so as to tax all securities which at this time go tax-free. It was brought out in the discussion that preceded the vote on this question that there are many people who are buying only these tax-free securities, a situation or practice which the members of the Realty board believe should be made impossible by constitutional amendment.

The members of the organization present empowered the president to appoint one member of the Realty board to serve in conjunction with the Civics committee of the Glendale chamber of commerce in the working out of details of propositions of interest to this city.

On motion of Charles B. Guthrie the board voted to contribute $25 to the Chobe remembrance fund which is now being made up at the Security Trust and Savings bank, this to be as a token of the appreciation in which the Realty board holds the work that was done by Mr. Chobe in the construction of the float which represented the city of Glendale at the Pasadena rose tournament this year.

It was announced by President Thom that at the next meeting of the Realty board the speaker of the day will be Supervisor Wright, who will talk on some of the county problems that are of special interest to Glendale.

The matter of accepting two advertising propositions that were offered to the board this week was referred to the advertising committee with the understanding that a report is to be made by that committee at the next meeting.

The multiple listing system, which was adopted by the Glendale Realty board some time ago was lengthily discussed. At the conclusion of the arguments a majority of those members casting a ballot voted to support the governing board in its decision that beginning February 1, all members of the board be compelled to operate under the multiple listing system.

OWNERS ON BRAND PROTEST LIGHT ASSESSMENT

The matter of hearing of protests against the proposed assessment for street lighting on Brand boulevard was brought up at the meeting of the city council Thursday night and on motion of Councilman Stephenson the hearing was continued until Monday evening, January 29, at 7:30 o'clock.

Mattison B. Jones presented a protest of property owners on Brand against this assessment. This represented 8397 feet, which is 614 feet more than the required majority of the frontage.

"One of the pleasing parts about presenting this protest," said Mr. Jones, "was that everybody visited signed it. It was simply a question of calling on the owners of property along Brand."

It was decided that a committee from the Brand Boulevard Improvement association would meet with the board as a committee of the whole next Wednesday night at 6:30 o'clock to discuss this matter.

CITY TO FUND FLOAT DEFICIT

On motion of Councilman Lapham, the Glendale city council decided last night to pay from the advertising fund of the city the sum of $125, which will be used to clear up the deficit that remains on the cost of the float that was entered in the Pasadena Rose Tournament on New Year's day.

This amount is being paid in addition to the $250 already paid by the city toward the cost of the float.

BOYHOOD TO BE HONORED AT FIRST ANNUAL MEETING OF SCOUTS OF VERDUGO HILLS

Opens With Banquet in Citizens' Building With Excellent Program on the Keynote of Enthusiasm and Good Fellowship

NO SOLICITATION OF MONEY TONIGHT

Charles L. Chandler, President of Local Council, to Act As Toastmaster and Organization's Orchestra Will Give Some of Latest Musical Hits

"We are all set for a great meeting tonight in honor of boyhood." So declared Charles L. Chandler, president of the local Boy Scout council, this morning.

The first annual meeting of the Verdugo Hills district council will be held tonight in the banquet hall of the Citizens' building, to be preceded by a banquet at 6:30 o'clock. Arrangements have been made with the Glen Inn to serve a dinner, the menu of which comprises a fruit cocktail, special salad, relishes, roast turkey, scalloped potatoes, creamed peas, ice cream and cake, coffee or milk, and hot rolls.

An excellent program has been arranged by a committee headed by Richardson D. White. Mr. White has written a boy scout song especially for this occasion. Everything has been done to make the affair one of enthusiasm and good fellowship. There is to be no solicitation of money as the campaign is not scheduled to begin until the middle of February.

Some rousing songs will be sung by everybody under the genial leadership of Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson. Mr. Chandler will act as toastmaster and the Boy Scout orchestra, consisting of Dallas Kalbaugh, drums; Arthur Barton, saxophone; Horace Brown, violin, and Graham Young, piano, will play some of the latest musical hits. Dr. Harry B. Crawford, of Eagle Rock, an old timer in scouting, will give a toast to the Boy Scouts. Leonard F. Collins of Burbank will talk briefly on "Scouting from a Scoutmaster's Point of View." A message of thanks to the council on behalf of the Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills District, will be delivered by Clifford Wallcott. Mayor Spencer Robinson, accompanied by Mrs. Robinson, will sing some delightful numbers. The speaker of the evening will be Charles N. Miller, representing the Twelfth Regional District, Boy Scouts of America. Following committee reports of the year's work and election of officers for 1923, Mr. Jackson will again lead in singing some peppy songs. The meeting will be closed in true Boy Scout fashion by all standing and repeating the scout oath led by Scout Jack Parkard.

P. E. LIGHTLESS UNGUARDED CARS REPORTED

"It has been brought to my attention," said Councilman Kimlin at the meeting of the Glendale council last night, "that the Pacific Electric cars have been going up and down Broadway during the night hours without their safety catchers down and without lights.

"I feel that steps should be taken at once to relieve this situation."

When asked if he knew anything with regard to instances of this kind, Chief of Police Fraser said:

"We noticed about three weeks ago that this was going on and at at that time I wrote to the Pacific Electric company. The traffic superintendent of the company assured me that he would look into the matter at once and that the practice would be stopped at once. if it was found that our department was correct."

"I suppose," said Councilman Stephenson, "if we took this matter to the railroad commission we would be told that if we would purchase the lights the commission would see that the cars carry them.

"You remember how it was with the Gardena crossing. The commission told us that if we wanted that crossing made safe for automobilists and pedestrians we would have to purchase the wigwag signals ourselves. It would probably be the same in this instance."

COLORADO STREET WIDENING DECIDED

An important step in the widening of Colorado street from Glendale avenue to the easterly city limits, and of Pacific avenue north of Broadway, was taken by the city council last night, when that body instructed the city attorney to have the titles to the various pieces of property affected brought down to date.

JUDGE GOODCELL TELLS OF OFFICE POLICY

Everyone Treated Kindly While Being Separated From Tax Money

"Smile When You Pay Your Income Tax" was the subject of a very inspiring talk dealing with patriotism and government taxes given at the chamber of commerce meeting last night by Judge Rex Goodcell, internal revenue collector of Los Angeles. He said in part: "We insist in our department at the Federal building that the people are entitled to courteous and pleasant service with the understanding that you yourselves are part of the United States government and partially responsible for the taxes you have to pay. We are merely your agents of the law, carrying out your will indirectly expressed.

"We expect you to love your home and country and flag with just the same fervor in time of peace as in the time of war. If we can get that spirit of patriotism to grip the people, we are going to have 99 per cent of them smiling when they pay their income tax.

"You have but one thing to demand of your government—that it shall be honestly and economically administered and for the best interest and promotion of the welfare and maintenance of the happiness of the people of America. There were collected in income tax returns from the people of the sixth district of California, which comprises the ten southern counties, $3,500,000 less under the present 1921 revenue law than would have been collected under the law of 1918 during the past six months period. It is the man with an income under $5000 who is being benefitted and not the rich man. Of that $3,500,000 saved in income tax in the last six months, over $3,230,000 of it was saved to 137,000 people whose incomes are less than $5000 per year.

"The government is trying to help the man who is struggling hard, recognizing the justice of placing the tax in accordance with their ability to pay."

Judge Goodcell also talked on the freight taxes and elimination of taxes on the 10 cent theater admissions. His talk was preceded by a short address on income tax by A. G. Wessling, division chief of the internal revenue service and who has charge of everything in the district office outside of the city of Los Angeles. J. G. Lytle, chief of the field division, answered a few general questions regarding income tax returns and later a number of the 125 or more people present were answered personally.

President Jesse Smith of the chamber of commerce thanked Judge Goodcell on behalf of the local organization for his splendid address.

Mr. Wessling will be in Glendale for several days, date to be announced later, to acknowledge reports and receive taxes.

SISTERHOOD CLASS OF METHODIST CHURCH MEETS

A farewell party was given by the members of the Sisterhood Class of the First Methodist Church, of which Mrs. J. P. Lampert is president, to Mrs. A. P. Torrey, teacher of the class, who plans to move soon to Fall Brook, Calif., in the social hall of the church. Mrs. Torrey has been the teacher of the class for three years; during which time the enrollment has increased from 35 to 125. The members regret losing her very much.

As a token of their appreciation for the splendid work done by Mrs. Torrey she was presented with a teacher's Bible from the class by Mrs. S. B. Warner, associate teacher. She responded with a few fitting remarks. After this the class members marched around singing "Blessed Be the Tie that Binds," during which each one dropped a flower in Mrs. Torrey's lap and gave her some greeting of love and esteem. Mrs. S. D. Percey then entertained the members with two readings, "Pluck and Prayer," and "Poor Deacon Brown." A social hour then followed, during which delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, which included Mrs. Harry Johnston, Mrs. C. R. Hallett, Mrs. E. D. Potter, Mrs. C. E. The meeting opened with the salute to the flag led by Miss Perkins, followed by the singing of "America." A number of etchings in black and white and aqua tints and paintings done by Mr. Cotton were on exhibition in the school auditorium. In her talk Mrs. Cotton gave interesting bits of information regarding the locale of the pictures and the making of the etchings.

White was present and spoke on the school conditions in the city and urged the members to attend the mass meeting held last night at the Wilson Avenue school.

So City Engineer Dupuy Reports to the Council Meeting

Glendale has more than 76 miles of improved streets, according to a report furnished the Glendale city council by City Engineer Dupuy Thursday night.

This report also shows that during 1922, 89,141.26 lineal feet of streets of various kinds were laid, and during the same period 76,105 lineal feet, or 389,524 square feet of cement sidewalks were installed. There was 766,765 lineal feet of curbing placed under public contract and 37,520 lineal feet under private contract during the same period. During the year 36,772 lineal feet of gutter, which equals 65,168 square feet, was placed under public contract, and 2,000 lineal feet of gutter placed under private contract. Water pipe laid during the year under public contract amounted to 114,372 lineal feet.

The report follows:

I have brought the map showing the paved streets in the City of Glendale down to date of January 1, 1923, and find that we have the following amounts of improved streets:

Willite pavement	.568 miles
Counting the two driveways on Brand Boulevard as two roads this would be	1.36 miles
Asphalt concrete pavement	.39 miles
3-in. and 5-in. macadam pavement	25.05 miles
Cement concrete pavement	5.125 miles
Oil surface, including Petrolithic pavement and resurface pavements	46.36 miles
Total	76.493 miles

During the year 1922 the total length and area of streets improved is as follows:

2,265.45 lineal feet equals 124,967 square feet of Willite.
2,059.2 lineal feet equals 66,551.80 square feet of asphalt concrete.
67,059.75 lineal feet equals 17,579,-236.84 square feet of surface oiling.
11,457.10 lineal feet equals 391,536.16 square feet of 3-in. macadam.
6,299.76 lineal feet equals 255,200.16 square feet of 5-in. macadam.

There was no cement concrete pavement put in during 1922.

In addition to this there was 4.73 miles of surface oiling done under private contract.

The length of sidewalk placed under public contract: 76,105 lineal feet equals 380,524 square feet. In addition to this there was 40,979 lineal feet of sidewalk placed under private contract.

There was 766,765 lineal feet of curb placed under public contract and 37,520 lineal feet under private contract.

There was 36,772 lineal feet of gutter, which equals 65,168 square feet, placed under public contract and 2,000 lineal feet of gutter placed under private contract.

There was 114,372 lineal feet of water pipe placed in connection with street improvements, a portion or all of which was assessed against the abutting property.

P. Dederich, superintendent of plant and production, stated last night that about the same amount of water pipe was laid by the city as was installed under public contract.

HEALING CREAM IS QUICK RELIEF FOR HEAD COLDS

Colds and catarrh yield like magic to soothing, healing antiseptic cream that penetrates through every air passage and relieves swollen, inflamed membranes of nose and throat. Your clogged nostrils open right up and you can breathe freely. Hawking and snuffling stop. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist. Apply a little in the nostrils and get instant relief. Millions endorse this remedy known for more than fifty years.—Adv.

AT THE THEATRES

"MY DAD" SHOWING AT GLENDALE THEATER

For sheer drama it would be difficult to find a motion picture to beat "My Dad," in which Johnnie Walker of "Over the Hill" fame makes his debut as an R-C star at the Glendale theatre tonight.

The nobility of self-sacrifice, the heroism of a son in fighting to prove his father innocent of a murder, forms the theme of this most unusual picture. And it is a story that fits Johnnie Walker as snugly as the proverbial glove. It shows him struggling through frozen trails, risking his life in tremendous blizzards, suffering the tortures of the numbing cold until he reaches the cabin of the man from whom he can obtain the evidence to prove his father innocent.

There are any number of big dramatic episodes in "My Dad." Moreover, it is filled with the elusive qualities we call "heart interest." The love of the son for the father will chisel into the hearts of all beholders.

Ruth Clifford as the girl also gives a fine performance and the broad reaches of the snow lands and towering timbers form a striking frame for her beauty. Other players of high calibre make up the cast.

"THIRTY DAYS" AND WALLY REID AT THE T. D. & L.

Wally Reid's latest picture, "Thirty Days," is the featured attraction at the T. D. & L. theatre today, showing at 17c, 28c, 33c, 39c, regular admission prices. It is a typical "Wally" picture—and one of the inimitable star's best. It offers real entertainment. Don't miss it.

Starting Sunday, "Heroes of the Street," with Wesley Barry, will be the attraction at the T. D. & L.—also one of the recent season's best offerings.

STATE HOUSING LAW DRAFT IS UNDERWAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—The second session of the State Housing Institute met here this morning in the city hall, for the purpose of discussing the tentative draft of a state housing law prepared by a special committee.

The committee, appointed at the last session of the Housing Institute, held in December, believes that the law which is drafted and which was presented for discussion this morning is in accord with the principles of good housing. Copies of the proposed act have been printed for distribution to all who are interested in the problem of good housing in this state.

PERFUME BURNER

A charming gift for the girl who has everything is a perfume burner of lovely colors and graceful shape. A few drops of perfume are sprinkled into the burner which is attached to an electric light plug and gradually a faint elusive fragrance is perceptible.

MRS. ELLA BIRDSALL DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

As the result of a lingering illness Mrs. Ella Johnson Birdsall, age 71, formerly of Wellsville, New York, cousin of Mrs. Ella P. Brown, 323 Salem street, died at a local sanitarium at 5 o'clock last night. The cause of death was internal paralysis, which resulted from an injury suffered by Mrs. Birdsall several years ago.

Mrs. Birdsall came to California a number of years ago. For seven years she resided in Los Angeles, but gradually her condition became gradually worse. This resulted in her being brought to Glendale, where for a short time she was confined in a private sanitarium. Later she was removed to one of Glendale's large institutions for the sick.

The deceased was born in Wellsville, N. Y., in 1852. She was a daughter of Henry and Martha Johnson, and a granddaughter of Nathanial Johnson, who was noted along various lines throughout New York state.

In 1885 Mrs. Birdsall married William R. Birdsall, a prominent New York physician, who died in 1898 in New York city.

Mrs. Birdsall was a member of the Eastern Star.

Funeral services will be held at the L. G. Scovern Undertaking parlors on South Brand boulevard, Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, Rev. Calderwood of the Congregational church officiating. The body will be cremated at Forest Lawn cemetery.

Even a Tightfisted Old Rascal What Don't Believe Anything Is on the Level

Will see a sight—enough to make his eyes pop out and set his arm a shakin' as he reaches for his check-book if HE takes a FREE auto ride with us down to Signal Hill tomorrow.

We'll show him a big old hill—(you folks would call it a bluff out in Iowa or Illinois)—right on the edge of Long Beach that was just a quiet, home-like hill a little over a year ago—that is NOW the CENTER of a seething, teeming activity. Scores of oil drenched derricks are everywhere—manned by oil besmirched crews or rough-necks. The air is rancorous with the noise of clanging pipe—the chug of pumps—and the sodden thud of the drills—OIL! OIL!—wherever you look—veritable liquid gold—that is pouring into the pockets of investors who ACTED instead of wished.

Ask any of your friends in Long Beach as to whether anyone has made money in oil. They'll tell you about, not one, but dozens of companies that have paid 50 per cent, 100 per cent, 200 per cent, even 300 per cent in a short year's time. They'll tell you, too, of Long Beach's own municipal wells. Ask people right here in Glendale who have invested in the 50-50 and other companies about THEIR dividends. Then realize that BEMCO NO. 1 is located right in the midst of this activity.

I honestly, truthfully and most sincerely believe and feel, that my BEMCO Syndicate No. 1 Unit Holders are destined to receive—within the shortest possible time—the greatest surprise of their life—that the tremendous profits that I shall pay will stagger the imagination.

These beliefs are founded on rock-bottom, steel-blue FACTS, backed by ACTUAL DEVELOPMENT on Signal Hill—by our well-chosen lease—by our iron-clad drilling contract—by the fact that YOUR interests are guarded in every way possible.

Friends—I can do no more—it's up to you—YOU who are fair-minded enough to investigate—and who have faith enough to co-operate with me.

OPPORTUNITY IS SMASHING AT YOUR DOOR WITH A BATTERING RAM. Belief—Action Spell SUCCESS. Believe and ACT NOW. Go to your phone and make arrangements to go to Signal Hill with me tomorrow.

CHRISTIAN CIRCLE CLUB MEETS AT CHURCH

The Christian Circle Club met last evening at the Christian Church with forty-nine girls present. Being freshman night the tables were tastefully decorated with the freshman colors, blue and white. During the evening yells were indulged in much to the enjoyment of everybody. The ladies of the Presbyterian Church served the supper, which was enjoyed by all. Miss Florence Hamilton, president of the club, presided over a short business meeting. Next Thursday night is to be college and business girls' night and a great time is being looked forward to. Miss Soper then taught the regular Bible lesson covering the letters of Paul the Apostle.

DR. JULIUS SOPER TO MARK EVENTS OF 50 YEARS AGO

Veteran of Methodist Missionary Forces Entered Life Work in 1873

The year 1923 will be marked by Dr. Julius Soper of Casa Verdugo by many important anniversaries, some of which he will celebrate. For example, fifty years ago on March 15, he was graduated from Drew Theological seminary near New York city and became a member of the Baltimore conference. This year that conference will meet in Washington the first week in April, and Rev. Soper is planning to cross the continent to attend it and also to visit Drew seminary, at the same time renewing acquaintance with old friends and relatives.

Soon after his graduation fifty years ago, or the 20th of May, he and Mrs. Soper were married and sailed at once for Japan, accompanied by Mrs. Soper's brother and his bride who were married the same day.

They arrived in August, helped to found the Methodist mission of Japan in 1873 and the anniversary of that event is to be marked by a big celebration in the flowery kingdom which Mr. Soper would delight to attend, but does not consider that he physically able to.

On the way home from Washington in April he will stop in Berkeley to visit the brother-in-law mentioned and try to persuade him to bear him company to Glendale, where the golden wedding of Dr. and Mrs. Soper is to be celebrated May 20.

COUNCIL HANDLES MANY CITY PROBLEMS

A petition was received by the Glendale city council Thursday from A. C. Schrader and other property owners on Dorothy Drive asking that that street, from Stocker to the north line of tract No. 2685 be improved with 5 inches of macadam pavement, fire hydrants and service pipes. The city engineer was instructed to draw up the proceedings necessary for this work.

The following ordinances were adopted:

An ordinance creating an industrial district.

An ordinance ordering the opening and widening of Harvard, Kenilworth to San Fernando road.

An ordinance establishing the grade of Palmer and Magnolia.

An ordinance establishing the grade on Fernando Court, etc.

A resolution of intention to improve California avenue, was adopted.

Peter L. Ferry was granted an extension of 90 days for the completion of Ben Lomond, Ardeven, etc.

An appeal signed by C. W. Schwitters and four other property owners on Adams street and North Adams place against the assessment for water pipes was received by the council. It is claimed that a larger proportion of the 12-inch main installed has been charged against the property than was arranged. It was referred to the city attorney for investigation.

A protest of the assessment on lot 2, tract 4142 was received from Minnie Petranschke.

A letter was received from John G. Klein, asking that the work on Los Feliz road be hastened. This was referred to the city manager to investigate and notify contractor to speed up work.

In response to a request of George B. Karr and Lyman P. Clark, the board appointed Councilman Sam Davis to represent the council on the combined civic committee, started by the Glendale chamber of commerce to handle matters of interest to Glendale as a whole.

A petition signed by John L. Bolen and others asking that Wabasso Way, across what is known as the Verdugo wash, between Verdugo road and Canada boulevard be made passable for vehicles and pedestrians, was granted on the report by the city engineer that the improvement would cost about $200.

Maps of tracts Nos. 5861, 6042, and 6008 were accepted.

As there were no protests against the establishing of the grade on Gilbert street, the next step in the work was ordered taken.

The hearing of protests against the assessment for water pipe on Pacific and Burchett was set for Thursday, January 25.

A demand for $27.25 made by F. M. Edwards, 127 North Columbus for damage done to the tires of his machine by the ditch on East Broadway, was referred to the city attorney.

On recommendation of City Manager Reeves, and on motion of Councilman Davis it was decided to instruct the city attorney to prepare the proceedings for the establishing of a water system in Glendale Heights.

A. P. Offut was denied a request to place a cesspool in the parkway at his place of business at the corner of Central and Broadway.

The matter of the improvement of Monte Vista avenue was laid over for one week.

MISS PEYCKE IS DELIGHTED WITH HI AUDIENCE

Miss Freda Peycke who gave the program of pianologues at two assemblies Thursday morning at Glendale high, was tremendously impressed and delighted by the concentrated and discriminating attention of the students, who packed the hall on both occasions and by the manner in which they restrained the outward manifestations of their inward amusement instead of riotous laughter which would have disturbed the musician. She paid a great tribute to the school and especially its music department.

Returns from the concert totaled about $125, and when incidental expenses are paid, graduating seniors will have a tidy sum for their class memorial.

IDAHO-UTAH PICNIC

The opening picnic reunion for the season, 1923, will be the Utah-Idaho rally in Sycamore Grove Park, Los Angeles, all day Saturday, January 20. There will be registers and headquarters for each county, souvenir badges, hot coffee and popular program.

To Our Customers and the Public in Southern California:

THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY submitted application to the Railroad Commission of the State of California for authority to issue $1,000,000 par value of its 6% Cumulative Preferred Stock on Wednesday, January 10th. It is the intention of the Company, as soon as authority to make such offering has been granted, to invite its customers, the public in Southern California, and its employes to purchase this stock and thus become associates and partners in the Company.

IF YOU ARE A CUSTOMER OF THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY, we believe you are getting gas service that meets your requirements and your approval. We honestly feel that about all that can be done in the way of enthusiastic and untiring work in the cause of good service is being done by our organization in your behalf.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS DEPENDABLE SERVICE has perhaps become so much a part of your daily life that you have not noticed the steady, substantial growth of the Company that gives this service. This growth and the sound, substantial service giving position which this Company now occupies is now, perhaps, worthy of your active notice because of this announcement.

REALIZING THE GREAT VALUE OF A CLOSER COMMUNITY OF INTEREST with those upon whose good will this business is founded, the Southern California Gas Company extends an invitation to all of its customers to become profit sharing partners in this long established and successful business, and to share as such in its management and profits, by investing in its 6% Cumulative Preferred Stock through direct purchase from the Company.

IN OFFERING THIS STOCK FOR SALE DIRECT TO OUR CONSUMERS, it is not primarily the purpose of the Company to secure capital. For a number of years, all of the capital that has been necessary to enable this Company to keep pace with the growth of the community has been raised through the regular investment banking channels. It is easier to raise money through that source than to engage in a campaign of this sort. The Management of the Southern California Gas Company, however, desires to secure its own customers as partners and associates with us in this enterprise—yourself among them. We believe that you feel the same pride in the growth of Southern California that we do, and that you will realize that the extension of utility service is necessary for community advancement and that in investing in stock of the Southern California Gas Company you are contributing toward that purpose.

THE FINANCIAL POLICIES OF THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY have always been conservative, with the result that the Company is today in a very strong financial position and its securities rank second to none in their class.

WATCH THE PAPERS FOR AN ANNOUNCEMENT OF THIS OFFERING. Full details regarding the stock and the advantages of an investment in it will be made at that time.

To assure getting particulars of this offering, fill in your name and address, clip and mail to Securities Department, Southern California Gas Company, 950 South Broadway, Los Angeles, California.

RED CARD IS PASSPORT IN YUCATAN

BY FRED'K G. NEUMEIER
(United Press Staff Corespondent)

MEXICO CITY, MEXICO, Jan. 12.—Travelers in Yucatan, the Land of Topsy Turvy, are not really safe unless they carry a red card.

Natives consider persons without the red cards as enemies.

On the back of the card is the doctrine which reads in part as follows:

"The land is the mother and the work is the father of humanity.

"Work for yourself—don't let anyone else exploit your labor.

"If you get a good price for your work do good work.

"Do not attack without a motive, but never present your right cheek when the left cheek is slapped."

Many of the churches of Yucatan are in ruins, church bells have been destroyed and fixtures of churches burned. When the Indians were freed from bonds of bitter slavery, their first act was to destroy the church bells.

Only sixteen priests are now permitted to remain in Yucatan, this number having been agreed upon, as the state only has sixteen representatives in its legislature. One of the leaders said: "If sixteen representatives are enough to take care of the citizens on earth, then sixteen priests are enough to take care of them in heaven."

The priests are considered professional persons and must take out licenses.

Filipe Carrillo, the governor of Yucatan, and head of the Socialist party, is the Moses of the country. Natives touch his clothes and hands whenever given an opportunity. They worship him and on one occasion when it was rumored that he had been assassinated in Merida, the capital of the state, native Indians ran to the city and threatened to burn it.

Socialism is being enforced in Yucatan, according to statements made by Carrilo, with American tools, including a machete made in New Haven, Conn. Every native carries one, always ready for use.

"When an American worker is idle he whittles wood; when a Maya Indian of Yucatan is idle he sharpers his machete," is a saying attributed to Carrilo.

Of two evils some people choose both as samples.

RECENT STAGE PHOTO OF SARAH BERNHARDT AND FAMOUS ACTRESS HALF A CENTURY AGO

Only a miracle could save Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, her physicians stated after a recent attack in Paris, and courage alone was sustaining her. But she survived the crisis, despite her 78 years, and insisted on discussing the new Guitry play in which she was to have appeared. She suffered a fainting spell during the final rehearsal. At the right the "Divine Sarah" is seen as she appeared a year ago in her role in "La Gloria." The other photograph of Mme. Bernhardt was taken about 1875.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

Mr. Keiser made a valuable suggestion in his address at the realtors' meeting in Santa Ana recently, when he urged street standardization, as I would call it. He said that apparently no attention was paid by promoters of new subdivisions to lining up the streets with those that are already in use. Lack of such a system has made Glendale's street map a weird and wonderful sight. Central avenue, one of the main north and south thoroughfares, has 24 streets extending east from, it south of the wash and 31 extending west. Milford, Broadway, Elk, Lomita, Maple, Windsor, Acacia and Laurel have unsightly jogs at Central. A similar situation exists on Brand. Arden, Milford and Magnolia extend west only from that boulevard; Forest and Vassar extend east only. Windsor and Acacia jog quite a bit in crossing Brand. Some of the streets are but 250 feet apart, others 300 and from that on up to 1000. If new subdividers had taken any pains to conform to street lines already existing, all this jumble would not have come about. There is only one street that traverses the city its full length north and south and that is Brand boulevard. There are two the other way, Colorado and Broadway, or if you count the Burbank line as the western boundary, there are none. San Fernando road traverses the city its entire length from southeast to northwest.

The erroneous impression that Iowa has contributed more to the population of California than any other state seems to still prevail. But the census of 1910 showed nearly 40,000 more former residents of Illinois in California as citizens than there were Iowans. In fact Iowa was not even second on the list, but fifth as I remember it. What the 1920 figures were I do not know, but I am positive that the Hawkeyes are far from the head of the list yet, except, probably, in percentage of emigrants to total population and in that respect Iowa doubtless excels all other states.

Many property owners take great pride in the shade trees that ornament their parkways, especially those they have set out as shrubs and tended carefully until they reached treehood, so to speak. And then to have these beautiful trees, that add so much to the appearance of their property, literally butchered by the ignorant trimmers generally sent around and who often seem intent on doing all the pruning possible in order to add to their own supply of wood, is heartrending. Property owners should be allowed to have the pruning done by experts they would be glad to employ, or else the city should send out for the purpose only men who understand tree culture and pruning and who have an eye to the beautiful.

Did you ever read over and over again some good book and so familiarize yourself with the characters that their appearance, physical makeup and conversation became real to you, then attend a movie purported to have been filmed from the story and find it "butchered to make a screen star's holiday?" It seems to a novice like me that some attention should be paid to fitting each main part with an actor or actress who would very nearly conform in physique to the character portrayed. To my notion Douglas Fairbanks is totally unfitted in build and stature for the part of Robin Hood, as that character is set out in Ivanhoe and in juvenile stories of this popular hero of the olden times. And for little Mary Pickford to undertake the part of Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall, in the screen version of that popular novel by Charles Majors, is as ridiculous as would be Charlie Chaplin cast for Henry the Eighth. Dorothy Vernon in the book is of more than the average stature of woman, slender, supple and strong. To think of little Mary Pickford representing this magnificent, queenly woman is a comedy of the first water. Of course I am an old fogy and have seen very few screen plays, but I have a sense of the fitness of things, anyhow. I have seen Edwin Booth as Iago, Lawrence Barrett as Lanciotto in Francesca da Rimini and as Othello; Thomas Keene as Macbeth, Frederick Warde as Virginius, Modjeska as Lady Macbeth, Margaret Mather as Juliet and many other great actors and actresses of the past generation in varied characters, yet in not one instance have I seen anything even approaching the incongruity of Mary Pickford as Dorothy Vernon.

I wonder how many residents of our beautiful city have read Helen Hunt Jackson's wonderful story, "Ramona," the greater part of which is historically true. And do you know that the great Camulos ranch, on which Ramona grew to womanhood, extended, originally, from above Newhall to the sea and comprised many thousands of acres of mountain and valley land? Its eastern boundary was close to the old San Fernando mission. When Allessandro and Ramona fled from the ranch to be married, their path was along the northern side of the Verdugo mountains, it is thought, and they followed a foothill trail above the present city of Pasadena, skirting the foot of the mountains until they reached the vicinity of San Bernardino and then struck across the valley to the San Jacinto mountains, where Allessandro's tribe was located. They traveled by night, mostly, to avoid pursuit. They went on almost to San Diego, where they were married. And a few years after the cruel and unprovoked murder of Allessandro, the noble son of Ramona's cruel foster mother who had loved her since she was a little girl and who nobly sacrificed his own hopes and longings to assist her in wedding the man of her choice, brought her back to the old ranch home. On this second wedding trip Ramona did not have to travel by night along wild forest paths, but, accompanied by her adoring husband, traveled in state through the beautiful San Gabriel Valley, and then up the San Fernando Valley, at that time a wilderness of bloom and verdure of nature's own handiwork, along the territory now occupied by Eagle Rock, Glendale and Burbank, passing old San Fernando mission when near the journey's end. And that was less than a hundred years ago. What mighty changes have been wrought in those few decades! This beautiful valley of ours, then a lonely wilderness, with only here and there a dwelling place, now teems with life and business activity, and thousands upon thousands of happy people lovingly call it home. When we look about us in rapturous appreciation of this earthly paradise, we forget that it was watered in the long ago by the bitter tears of an oppressed people. The wrongs and cruelties perpetrated upon the sweet-natured California Indians, who seemed to have none of the vengeful, fiendish characteristics of the Apaches and other Indians that have been responsible for so many horrible massacres in years gone by, constitute the blackest page in California's history under American rule.

Travelers tell us that in some of the mountainous portions of Italy and in other countries of Europe, every foot of land that can be possibly brought under cultivation is so utilized. The mountain sides are terraced as far up as the snow line and in some cases above it, and the land thus reclaimed is set to fruits and vegetables. If the time ever comes when California has the 50,000,000 or more population it can support, according to the standard set by the most thickly settled European countries, notably Belgium, then will our descendants will see the Verdugo hills and other elevations surrounding Glendale, terraced to their very tops and luxuriant with the foliage of trees, vines and plants that will supply sustenance to the thousands in the valleys below.

A few years ago Col. Tom Ginger seriously contemplated the project of building an electric line from the floor of Verdugo Canyon up the mountainside and along the crest of the Verdugo range for some distance west, as a scenic railway, believing it would attract enough sightseers as passengers to make it a paying institution. He finally abandoned the plan, however, for lack of financial backing. This may not have been such a visionary project, after all, and those who come after us may some day see a scenic line running out north from Los Angeles, up Mount Washington, thence circling around Eagle Rock, crowning the Verdugo mountains and extending up above San Fernando, thence down Owensmouth Way to the hills above Santa Monica and then back to the heart of Los Angeles either direct or by way of Redondo, Point Firmin and Long Beach. The valleys could be crossed by elevated tracks. This would certainly be a scenic line beyond compare, but whether or not it would attract sufficient sightseers to pay for construction and maintenance, is a problem. Certainly the engineering difficulties would not need to be as great as those encountered in building the Mount Lowe railway.

TYPES OF FARMING

Dr. W. J. Sillman, consulting specialist with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics for the government at Washington, D. C., will come west to the State College of Washington in April, at the invitation of Dean E. C. Johnson, to give an address on "Factors Controlling Distribution of Types of Farming in the U. S."

Dr. Spillman was formerly professor of agriculture at the college, and has since been head of the office of farm management of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and then associate editor of the Farm Journal, Philadelphia.

ENGLAND FEARS LOSS OF NAVAL SUPREMACY

BY LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Jan. 12.—For the first time in centuries England is minus the trump cards in the game of retaining supremacy of the sea.

Two new capital ships, planned as the most powerful afloat and scheduled to be begun this month may remain mere paper sketches in the Admiralty office.

Unless the signatory nations make haste to consummate the Washington disarmament treaty, England will find herself tied with Japan as a bad second in sea power, naval experts point out.

Despite national poverty it was understood, weeks ago, the plans of the two new ships would be carried to completion. This followed the call for bids on the part of the Admiralty for the construction of the peerless monsters.

It is now rumored that the admiralty's opening of bids was in direct disagreement with the instructions of the Lloyd-George government. The government had ordered that the program be deferred for an indefinite period. On its own initiative the Admiralty called for bids. It is up to the new government, now, to countermand the order or to sanction laying the keels.

The Lloyd-George government proceeded with the scrapping of all the ships specified in the Washington agreement. By so doing, it is pointed out, the existing reserve of the British navy against a possible repudiation of the naval agreement by other signatory powers has been destroyed.

This "act of good faith" has pushed England perilously near the danger point, the Morning Post declares. Should a repudiation of the Washington agreement occur at this time, the resultant strength of the three great naval powers would be: United States 41 capital ships, Japan 23 capital ships, England 23 capital ships.

The United States has not, according to the Post, taken steps to scrap designated vessels pending the final endorsement of the naval agreement by the government concerned.

Lord Lee of Fareham is quoted as saying that the only reason the Admiralty agreed to the scrapping of nineteen capital ships by the late government was that the other powers should fulfill their obligations and that two new ships allowed under the agreement should be made immediately available.

Either of these premises to the Admiralty's conclusion to sanction the scrapping program may prove unsound. But, even though the treaty is poorly carried out, England will be far behind unless some means of carrying out the construction of the two new ships is found.

After ratification all around, the United States would possess 20 capital ships built and building. Five of these would be post-Jutland. Japan would have 10 capital ships, two of them post-Jutland. England would have an imposing total of 22 capital ships. But, the Post points out, only one of these, the Hood, would embody the improvements derived from the experience of the war. The foregoing status puts England in a distinctly inferior position to the United States in ultra-modern ships.

If the treaty is ratified all around, and if the money for the construction of the two new ships is forthcoming, England and the United States will be on a parity with 20 capital ships each. Under the agreement England must scrap four capital vessels upon commissioning the pair of new ones. Japan's quota will be ten ships. If there is a hitch anywhere the balance is destroyed and England for the first time will find herself second in naval power.

Meantime alarming rumors come from France that the naval agreement may not be okayed.

Truths in Epigram

Pride, howe'er disguised in its own majesty, is littleness. —Wordsworth.

It is better to be unborn than untaught: for ignorance is the root of misfortune.—Plato.

Man is a noble animal, splendid in ashes and pompous in the grave.—Sir Thomas Browne.

DIVIDING THE STATE

About once in so often some shrill voice is raised in favor of dividing California. Yesterday it came from the north, and was based on the theory that the south end of the state was too dry for perfect unison with the end where the flow of synthetic gin was reckoned one of the joys and necessities of life. Today the voice is heard piping in the southland. Its message is that this section is not being given a fair deal politically. In either case the voice is the expression of folly.

Prohibition is a fact mentioned now in the constitution. Its enforcement is a matter of law. There is some difficulty of enforcement, and it is not confined to the north. In respect of desire to have its toddy, it may not be said justly that either end of the commonwealth "has anything on" the other. Both have their quotas of abstainers, moderate drinkers and plain soaks, and each entertains the whole gamut of sentiments naturally evoked by conditions in respect of liquor.

So far as getting imposed upon by the north, the south, with the majority of voters, has no one to blame but itself. On certain days of the year the polls are open. Every citizen has a right to register then such desires as stir him. If the citizen declines to vote, or permits himself to be persuaded by the campaigner from afar, the fault rests with the citizen. It is a duty to be as alert as the folk on the other side.

The recent election gave at least one illustration of the manner in which the people of the south fall down. Justice William A. Sloane of the supreme bench was a candidate for re-election. He was the only candidate from the south, an exceptionally able jurist, and man of highest character. The south permitted him to be defeated. Instead of feeling sore, it should feel ashamed. Where was its pride on election day?

California just as it stands is one of the great states of the Union. Geographically it is exceeded by only one. In respect of variety of climate, scenery, production, spirit and devoted citizenship, there is none to excel it. It makes a complete and ideal whole. To erect another state out of it would mean the election of a new set of officials, the setting up of a second capital, and the inception of a continual and bitter rivalry. There is now a growing community of feeling. Los Angeles and San Francisco, two mighty cities, sustain amicable relations. There is room for both in one state. They are so differently conditioned that it is fairer to regard them as co-operative rather than engaged in competition. Each is an essential complement of the other.

The advocate of state partition is not advocating anything that would be of benefit to either section. He is not echoing a prevailing sentiment. In the language of the street, he is talking rag-time.

TYPICAL RACE WAR

In a little Florida town inappropriately bearing the name of Rosewood, there lately has been one of the small race wars characteristic of portions of the south. When anybody outside the area of turbulency ventures an opinion in such a case, he is informed somewhat frigidly that down there the negro is understood. The list of casualties in this particular instance is somewhat vague, but figures purporting to be authoritative, given while the trouble was in progress, were two white persons dead and twenty colored persons. Uncertainty as to detail has arisen since, owing to the practice of shooting up houses of colored folk with their inmates, and then setting the structures on fire.

According to a recent dispatch from Rosewood "In the opinion of the officers the fires here today mark the end of the racial disturbance."

As the fires in question had destroyed the last of the homes of the colored citizens, survivors being in flight or in hiding, it is probable that the situation does mark the end of the episode. It also may be said to mark the sowing of seed for many a future episode of precisely similar sort.

These race wars, so called, disgrace the section in which they occur, and in the eyes of the whole world, they are deemed to disgrace the entire country. While it possibly is true that they are incited occasionally by some overt act of an individual, it also is true that were the law permitted to deal with the individual in question, there could be no reason for the outbursts of murder and incendiarism.

USEFUL ACTIVITIES

Explorers have crossed the Sahara by tractors. It was not a difficult task. It proved among other things, that the day of the camel as a bearer of desert burdens is about ended. Over the course followed by the tractors there will be a rail line in the comparatively near future. All this represents an enterprise of France. How infinitely it rises superior to the plan of seizing a portion of Germany, perpetuating an enmity, and adding to the burden of the world, must be clear to any observer. Were France to devote its energies to constructive work, cease nursing its pet hatreds, cut down its army; in a word, if France would get busy, it would have universal respect. Not only this, but it could see its way to possession of greater wealth than it could acquire by invasion of Germany, and as it sought and developed this wealth, it would be doing something for human betterment. It would be possible to seize the Ruhr region now, but a generation or two hence, almost certainly, there would come dreadful reprisal. Conquering the desert would be a fine achievement.

There are richly productive regions of the Niger and the Congo, both under French domination, that a road across the desert would render accessible. Occidental Africa grows cotton like that of Egypt. There are other raw products, not worth transportation by present costly methods, that could be moved in a week to the markets of Europe.

Here is a conquest worth thinking about.

It would be interesting, rather than important, to know if Mr. Ford is in any part behind the effort to present him to the country as a candidate for the presidency. Far more likely that is too busy with his industrial enterprises even to pause long enough to plead "Not guilty." The probability is that the Ford boom, so called, is a mere smoke screen, raised for purpose of concealment of some purpose having no relation to Ford.

The world hears, with emotions so far from acute as to be readily controlled, that Harold McCormick has lost his appendix. So far as cables relate, it resembles the appendix of any other mortal, being so like in fact, that shaken up with any number in a measure of hospital alcohol, it never could have its identity fully restored.

His Satanic majesty catches some men by lending them dignity and some by lending them dollars.

The spoon is a little thing that creates a stir in every household.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

So much advice has been given to fathers about how to treat their children that perhaps a little advice would be in order to children about how to manage father.

Dr. Frank Crane

Let us indulge in no prelude and get to business.

First of all, study your father. Look him over and think him over. Do not assume that you know all about him and do not make it a business to keep away from him.

Be patient with him. He is probably doing the best he can according to his lights. He may not understand you, but then again, on the other hand, perhaps you do not understand him. It takes two to do a job of understanding.

Remember, that not long ago you were a baby, and it is a little difficult for father to realize that you are not one yet. He had to tell you everything to do and when one gets into that habit it's very hard to quit.

Sympathize with him. He is growing old, and some day, as you will find out, growing old is no joke. You are full of illusions and hopes. He is full of disillusions and his stock of hope is not so large as it was. Also remember that he has to get out every day and find something wherewith to purchase bread and butter, which is some different from merely coming to the table when the bell rings.

Respect your father. He is entitled to that in any case. Never seem to disregard his opinion. When he speaks, listen. You may not always be able to obey, but at least you can listen.

You object to his being impatient and intolerant with you and therefore you should not be impatient or intolerant with him.

Be polite to him. There is no place where courtesy counts for more than toward your father.

Flatter him. Say things that you think will please him. He may not let on that he cares anything about this, but he does care. Between you and me there is no one whose good opinion a father values so much as his son's.

Be affectionate with him. If he makes it difficult for you to do this, then be as affectionate as you can.

Do not argue with him. He may think that you ought to accept anything he says without question. Let him think it. It pleases him and it doesn't hurt you. We all have our little vanities and father should be allowed to have his. He may not know as much as you do, but some day you will be forty yourself and then you will not know as much as you do now.

Do not contradict him. Well-bred people do not contradict each other flatly.

Help him. You know him perhaps as well as any one knows him and you know of many little ways in which you could make things easier for him. Remember that while you are a colt and frisking in the pasture, father is a pack horse and the load sometimes becomes burdensome.

Most of all, and most important of all, never show that he hurts your feelings. He probably will hurt them, but do not let him see it. Get a grip on yourself.

Finally, remember that you are playing for high stakes—to win a father. You will never have but one father and when you lose him you cannot find another.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

QUERIES

To A. F. M.: In the sentence, "I wandered lonely as a cloud that floats on high o'er vales and hills", as a cloud is an adverbial clause, is lonely being understood—as a cloud is lonely.

To "A Constant and Interested Reader": The pronunciation of comparable; kom' pa-ra-bl (o as in not; a as o in winsome; a as o in winsome).

To S. Shops: It is not correct to use the expression "aren't I". Wrong: "Aren't I always polite to you?" Right: Am I not always polite to you?

To Alexander Bell: The sentence, "Hasn't he been here on Wednesday?" is not correct. The following constructions are correct: Hasn't he been here? Was he not here on Wednesday?

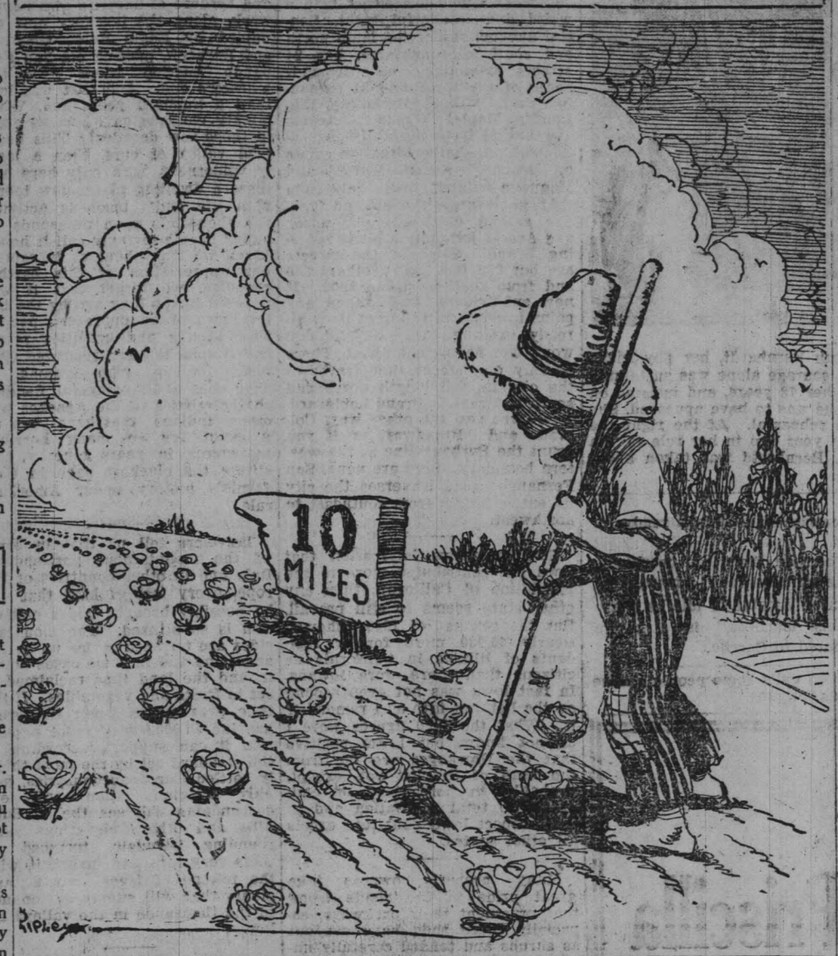
To Anna M. Kelly: The right word is have in the following sentence: "Such unnecessary wire or wires may be removed after such wire or wires have (or has) been offered to the telegraph company. It is good usage to separate the auxiliary verb from the rest of the verb phrase by an adverb as you have illustrated: "After the telegraph company has first had an opportunity."

Dorothy Miller: Of is the right word in the following: "Assuring you of our appreciation of (not for) this business."

To "A Reader": In is the right word in the following sentence: "Our foreign business has receded in (not to) an amazing degree." Degree, as you have used it, means relative extent; amount; intensity.

To Gertrude Lee: "It will always be laudible" is correct; also, "He had never spoken an unkind word to her" is correct. It is in accordance with good usage to place an adverb between the auxiliary and the rest of the verb phrase. Proposition's in "This proposition's being admitted, I now state my argument" is incorrect. The following is correct: This proposition being admitted, I now state my argument. Correct spelling: laudable.

THE MAN WITH THE HOE. —BY RIPLEY



Songs of the Poets

The Call—By Reginald Wright Kauffman (1877——)

Love comes laughing up the valleys,
Hand in hand with hoyden Spring;
All the Flower-People nodding,
All the Feathered-Folk a-wing.

"Higher! Higher!" call the thrushes;
"Wilder! Freer!" breathe the trees;
And the purple mountains beckon
Upward to their mysteries.

Always farther leagues to wander,
Peak to peak, and slope to slope;
Lips to sing, and feet to follow,
Eyes to dream and heart to hope!

Tarry? Nay, but who can tarry?
All the world is on the wing;
Love comes laughing up the valleys,
Hand in hand with hoyden Spring.

THE WIDOW TALKS OF DIVORCE

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

The widow was eating soup and I was eating prunes. The locale was a certain cafeteria, and the conversation turned to marriage and divorce.

"I'll never re-marry," said the widow. "No, I'm not a man hater, but I have a conscience and somewhere in these United States I have a husband. While he lives I choose to remain single. It's no hardship, either. I have my children to support and can do it very well. I have my profession to engross my attention, and I like it."

"Still you might love a man some day," I suggested after I'd swallowed the fourth prune.

"I might but I won't. Casual affairs with men are a shameful waste of time and the divorcee who specializes on prizing husbands and wives apart is a menace that we do not regard with sufficient seriousness. I know because I've worked a good bit in the divorce courts. I know one woman who left her husband casually when she found he was a financial failure, though she had never done anything to make him a success.

"Within a year she has widened the breach between three couples and she has no intention of marrying or attempting to marry any one of the men. She is looking for excitement until she can find a man with enough money to pay for a continuous vaudeville show after her liking.

"This country is fast drifting toward a place where we must either give the home a substantial foundation or give it up. People who can't make a success of marriage ought not to be loose to keep others from doing so."

"Do you think that the average pair can make a success of marriage if they choose?"

"Barring cases where congenital or acquired disease enters as a factor or where one or both partners are ab or sub-normal, yes. I believe that honest effort and right intention applied to marital partnerships will bring the same results as those qualities applied to business partnerships. When all is said and done, why do people quit? Simply in the hope of getting a new partner who will relieve them of the effort they are unwilling to put into marriage. That's all.

"Maybe I am old-fashioned, but it seems to me it is better for two who have made a failure of a marital venture to stay married and be unhappy than for them to be given a divorce to go out and make a dozen or more people unhappy.

"A divorcee is like a bit of ball lightning, harmless enough until it hits something and then the center of an amazing wreck."

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

DIVIDED COUNSEL

[Minneapolis Journal]

It is rather interesting and curious, the way American opinion has divided on the foreign war debts. These amount to about $11,000,000,000, borrowed in various amounts chiefly by Great Britain, France and Italy. The subject has stimulated quite a literature, and the end is not yet.

There is a group of moralists, for example, who believe that Europe's war debts to America should be cancelled. This country, they maintain, joined with the allies in self-defense and in support of a great cause. The debts of such a crusade, they maintain, should not be considered among friends. With the coming of peace they should be charged off to national and international experience.

Another opinion might be called the first-aid theory. The idea here is that, when the world goes to war, there is no place for neutrality. It is the business of each nation to take sides according to its choice, and the one entering the conflict late should compensate the more timely and aggressive belligerents. It should not collect any debts, to say the least, from which it advantaged because of its natural position.

The third attitude evident in this country might be called the leverage theory. Proponents of this idea argue that America's cancellation of European debts should be made conditional upon European nations cutting down their military expenses, and otherwise behaving as the United States thinks they ought to behave. The war debts should be used as a leverage to bring Europe to a saner state of mind.

Then there is the group of Americans apparently the largest of all, who believe that cancellation in any form would be a dangerous precedent to establish. They feel that large patience should be exercised by this country toward the debtor nations, but they hold that no reparation should be permitted.

The courts have thrown out a million dollar breach of promise suit, but still must admit that they allowed the suit to get in.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The supreme court of this state recently sustained a will. Doubtless the wise gentlemen of the bench were following the law.

HENRY JAMES

It seems that just as a man was married he had made a will leaving his property to his parents. He lived but three months after the marriage. There was a posthumous child. The terms of the will were carried out, the result being that the widow and her baby were left penniless.

According to the court, decedent had remembered his wife in the technical manner necessary, as indicated by the fact that he left her $1. It becomes a pleasure and duty to give a dissenting opinion.

Such a will should have had no standing whatever. It was a shameful document, bespeaking the meanness of the testator. His wishes deserved no consideration. He had no more moral right to leave his widow penniless than he would have had to desert her through the ordinary course of running away.

Framers of a law by the terms of which such outrages may be perpetrated ought to be ashamed of themselves. Without doubt every citizen to whom the workings of the statute are made clear, will be ashamed and indignant, demanding a new and better law marked by common sense and consideration for justice.

* * *

The man who has a fortune to bestow upon the poor, is passing around again. His method is to select an honest agent to attend to the distribution. Of course the honest agent is required to put up a sum of money in token of his honesty. This is the only money that figures anywhere in the transaction.

That human beings wise enough to come in out of the rain can be caught by so stupid a game is marvelous. They are caught right along. There is not the slightest occasion to sympathize with them. The parting of a fool and his money in this fashion is devoid of pathos.

* * *

"Pussyfoot" Johnson is back from New Zealand, having failed to make the people there take his view of prohibition. However, he was treated with greater consideration than in England, where they knocked his eye out.

If Johnson, once more on his native heath, will look about him, he will find that there is work here that an earnest prohibitionist might do.

* * *

There is said to be some sentiment in England in favor of abolishing capital punishment, due in part to the recent painful necessity for hanging a woman.

Of course this is a matter for England to decide. While considering it, the fact should be borne in mind that murder is a rare crime over there, and in this country, a very common one. The ordinarily accepted reason for this is that in England murder is punished, which is not the custom here.

Mr. Hearst's papers show indications of distress over the desire of the authorities to catch young Bergdoll.

* * *

The old saying that it makes a difference whose ox is gored, gets vindicated every little while. For example there have been certain influences in this country striving to keep the United States from mixing in the affairs of Europe. France threatens to invade Germany because of non-payment of reparations, and these same influences fairly shout for the whole world to intervene.

All the talk about keeping aloof, isolated, superior and distant has been in behalf of somebody's ox; much of it for the ox that France threatens to gore.

* * *

It was very wicked for Chicago bandits to rob a gambling joint. Nobody would undertake to defend them. Yet it is possible that they had been there before and had been robbed first.

The patrons of the game could have no particular reason to complain at the loss of their money to the invading thieves. Had the unwelcome visitors stayed away, the money would have been stolen just the same. There is no better reason for handing money over to a gambler than to a bandit who admits being a bandit.

* * *

Still there come from Louisiana stories of horror in relation to ku klux crimes. Still the senses, trained by living in an environment of civilization, decline to accept them as truth. They are so monstrous as to be beyond immediate belief.

The evidence, as yet unrefuted, is that men have been tortured to death by methods as horrible as savages ever employed, or as the evil geniuses of the Inquisition could devise.

* * *

Bitter charges are brought against the anti-saloon league, and against the men engaged in enforcing the prohibition law. While these come from an organization that has a sounding title, there appears small reason for paying any attention to them.

It goes without saying that when the stream of liquor is made to dwindle to a trickle, pretty poor stuff at that, some of the thirsty are going to howl about it.

There are corrupt prohibition agents doubtless. Some of them are bootleggers. But when a group of enforcement agents make a raid, they are going to be called corrupt anyhow.

When school bonds of this community are offered for sale they are sold quickly and command substantial premium. They have been issued in great number within a year. Not a single issue goes begging.

Recently twenty-four hours passed in which Friend Richardson was not on the state payroll. The interval between the time when he ceased being treasurer, and became governor, must have given rise to peculiar emotions on his part.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

When you go into Lawyer Higgins' private office and sit down in the heavy chair that is so disposed that all the light from the window falls on your open and flustered countenance, and none, whatever, on Ira Higgins' iron face, you look about you. It is necessary to do so to get away from the impression that Mr. Higgins is peering into the recesses of your soul. You see on the wall, so near at hand that you can read it easily, a large, handsomely embossed certificate of stock.

"Fifteen hundred shares in the Home-Grubstake-Life-Line Company," you read.

If Ira has time he will tell you the story of that certificate. He was young in his profession then, and anxious to make money. His good friend, one Stratton, who was a bond salesman, told him of a chance to make a lot of money by buying this stock. It was soon to go skallyhooting upward in the market. So Ira did, and the stock has never budged since then.

"But it was the best one hundred and fifty dollars I ever spent," Ira has told every man who has ever looked at it since then. "For one thing, I put Stratton out of business in this town. As soon as I found it was a swindle I had that certificate framed and began to tell the story. Stratton could not buy it back from me. He had to leave town. He had had a lot of friends like myself—people who really believed in him—but he could not face them after they read the certificate."

He put out of business the firm who handled the Home-Grubstake Life-Line stock, too. It is astonishing how many people a really determined person can reach after he has been wronged. He made no charges. He merely told the story and let those who heard it judge for themselves. In six months' time the brokers had lost so many good accounts that they were forced to close their doors. Every man who quit them was compelled to justifying himself by telling the story.

"Above all," said Ira, "that certificate of stock has been of value because of the lesson it taught me. I have not invested a dollar since then on any man's sayso. I have dug into the facts and roots of the proposition for myself."

There is not anything quite so discouraging for a man with a queer proposition to face as that sort of a certificate hanging on the wall either. By the time they have heard the story the sellers of sunbeams usually take the hint and go.

I think I'll dig my hope chest and paper the wall with stock certificates like that. They may save me money, too.

HATS MAKE THE BEAUTY OF OLD WORLD WOMEN

BY HEDDA HOYT
United Press Fashion Editor
(Written for The United Press)

PARIS, France, Jan. 12.—Everywhere one goes in Europe one hears boasting of the beutiful women of Paris and Vienna. Some of them are truly beautiful, but our American beauties could rival them in a beauty contest.

Hats make the European women beautiful. The millinery of Paris and Vienna is simply marvelous. There each and every hat is a creation. Millinery shops are little places where seldom more than a dozen or two hats are on display. There are no long counters of hats for women to try on. One orders a hat just as one would order a portrait of one's self. One sits hours before a three-sided mirror, while different materials and ornaments are selected which bring out one's coloring and moods. And that is as it should be.

A beautiful hat is one of the most important factors in a woman's life. Husbands have been won by them and homes wrecked through lack of them. And yet, we Americans are still in the infancy of the millinery art.

Give an American woman a hundred dollar gown and a ten dollar hat and she feels well dressed. Give a French woman a ten dollar gown and a hundred dollar hat and she is well dressed. Her gown may be a thing fashioned by herself but her hat comes from the hands of an artist.

The close fitting hat is by far the most popular with the Parisians just now, suede and felt being generally used for them. The most successful shape for the suede hat has a cloth crown, which fits the head closely, with a brim about an inch wide in front and no brim whatever in back, giving a poke effect. Usually there is a cocarde or pom-pom of feathers or ribbon at the side front which falls over the shoulder. Poke effects are gaining in popularity day by day. Sometimes the front brim is exaggerated in length and the turned-up back is again making an appearance. This is due to the revival of the old-fashioned gowns.

Many shapes use the Egyptian idea of ear tabs, especially for evening wear, where the tabs are like huge jeweled earrings fitting flat over the ears. Bandaux for evening wear in Paris are far lovelier than those used in New York at present. They are usually shaped in coronet fashion with ear tabs and are studded all over with rhine stones or colored stones. The band of gold metalic cloth which is wrapped carelessly about the head is seldom seen.

All-over embroidered hats are considered smart this season. There are raffias embroidered in brilliantly colored yarns, beaded effects on satin, colored nail heads on soft felts, etc.

While ribbon of the two-faced variety is sponsored by several of the Parisian and Viennese shops, it is not meeting with the success of the embroidered effects. The ribbon hats are entirely unlike those we have previously known. Little poke shapes made of shirred ribbon and faced in contrasting colors are in demand. There is one with rows of beige faille ribbon pecoted in red forming the crown and brim which has a long red streamer and is faced in red that is fascinating on a youthful face. Then there are pokes which are entirely covered with tiny flat flowers.

Hats of the off-the-face variety are still being worn, but they must be unusually well made to attract attention this season, as their popularity has been long.

Soft felts and duvetynes are favoring pastel colorings such as orchid, almond green and soft wood shades. Of the brighter colors, coral is the strongest seller, and it is often combined with black. Parisians are particularly fond of using these two shades together. Several white felts are trimmed with white waxed gardenias. Changeable taffetas of the turban shapes are among the early spring models. Hand-painted duvetynes in batik effects are also smart.

Helmets of gold metalic cloth are a new innovation in the evening hat world. They are particularly smart on the young girl with straight regular features.

Veils of black net which reach just over the eyes are still used on the small black shaped hats which are usually a bit harsh without this softening touch.

FEAR AND INFECTION

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

At this season of the year, when infectious diseases of the respiratory organs—colds, influenza, pneumonia, etc.—most commonly begin to make their appearance, it is not amiss to recall a warning issued by that authoritative medical journal, the Lancet, during the latest influenza epidemic.

"We have nothing to add in the way of prophylactic recommendations except to ask responsible organs of public opinion not to lay undue emphasis on the ravages of the epidemic or to insist on preventive means whose value has not been definitely established.

"Such actions tend to create an atmosphere of uneasiness and dread in individuals, which is itself one of the more potent predisposing causes of infection."

I wish indeed that I could properly impress on every one of my readers the malevolent part played by fear as an agent in the spread of infectious diseases of all sorts. Courage, to be sure, does not of itself confer immunity. But it undoubtedly is a real aid toward the gaining of immunity.

In witness whereof I would call attention to the comparatively low mortality rate of physicians and nurses during disease epidemics.

More than any other class of people they are exposed to infection. More than most others their labors subject them to exhaustion while an epidemic is raging.

Yet, shirking no responsibilities, evading no risks, they are stricken far less frequently than others. And the likelihood of their succumbing when stricken is distinctly less.

To explain this one cannot invoke a suppositious inheritance of immunity. Physicians and nurses are as varied in their heredity as are people engaged in other occupations. The one thing they have as a group is a similar mental attitude—readiness to render service and fearlessness in the rendering of that service.

Under the impulse of this mental attitude it may reasonably be insisted because of the known relationship between mental states and bodily conditions, all their internal processes are favorably influenced and their resistive vitality heightened. If this is so, and it undoubtedly is so, all who imitate them in the cultivation of courage may expect to be similarly benefitted.

Other means to raise the vitality should of course not be neglected. So far as possible all should live a decent hygienic life as regards sleep, exercise, diet, fresh air, etc. If in addition anxiety and worry regarding the possibility of infection can be conquered, it is safe to say that the probability of infection will be greatly lessened.

Or if infection be nevertheless contracted, so long as courage is present the odds are that the resulting attack will be light.

Do not, then, with the darkening of the days and the coming of chill weather, begin to perturb yourself as to colds, the influenza, or the pneumonia you may "catch." Continue serenely to go about your business, subduing all pessimistic thoughts, and above all resolutely confronting the demon of fear.

Once you yield to that demon, dangers in truth will crowd rapidly upon you—and not least the danger of infectious disease.

"THE FIVE NATIONS"

About 1535, when Cartier went up the St. Lawrence to the present site of Montreal, there was a loose federation of Indians, which later became better organized and was known as the "Five Nations."

The Mohawks were located in the eastern part of New York state, the Oneidas in the vicinity of Oneida Lake, the Onondagas, keepers of the great annual council fire and wampum belts that bound the federation in treaties, on the hills about Onondaga Lake; the Cayugas near Cayuga Lake, and the Senecas in the valley of the Genesee River, and, later, out as far as Niagara.

There were fifty principal chiefs representing the five nations in the great council always held in the land of the Onondagas. There were nine from the Mohawks, nine from the Oneidas, fourteen from the Onondagas, ten from the Cayugas, and eight from the Senecas. The Tuscaroras were later represented. In the determination of any plan of action for the league each nation had only one vote.

A nation was made up of tribes and clans, marriages taking place between the tribes or clans and sometimes between nations. These intermarriages made a strong bond of unity.

There were great orators and diplomats among these nations, and many a long and hot debate was held about the council fire.

Their villages were protected by strong stockades of tree trunks. Within the stockades were the "long houses," the typical housing quarters of these Indians. Parallel rows of slim poles were placed in the ground, bent together at the top, and covered with bark. The structure was narrow but often long enough to hold fifteen or twenty families. Holes in the roof allowed the smoke from the various family fires to escape, and also allowed some light to enter. The entrances were at each end.

CLOTHES FOR WINTER SPORTS

Society is divided. Half goes south after the holidays and the other half finds its pleasure at the winter resorts. For those who are fond of winter sports, there are the smartest of sport suits. One especially attractive model is a knicker suit of blue and black plaid with a slipover belted coat. Both coat and knickers are trimmed with black leather. Another suit is of mixed tweed with a small choker collar of beaver.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

BY E. R. WAITE,
Secretary
Shawnee, Oklahoma, Board of Commerce

THAT the local newspapers have much to do with the building of a community.

THAT if a public movement is started which means better things for a city, the newspapers cooperate and it generally wins.

THAT if the newspapers do not help, the movement usually loses.

THAT local newspapers are a BIG PART OF EVERY COMMUNITY.

THAT they are always working for the public good.

THAT they seldom get the credit they deserve.

THAT they have goods to sell the same as any other merchant.

THAT their goods consist of newspapers and advertising space.

THAT they can no more afford to give it away than a merchant can afford to give his stock away.

THAT if they expect their business or their city to grow, they might as well begin to realize that WHERE YOU FIND PROSPEROUS NEWSPAPERS YOU FIND A PROSPEROUS COMMUNITY. DO YOUR SHARE TO MAKE YOURS PROSPEROUS.

IRON ORES IN WASHINGTON

"We know of, or are quite sure of finding, at least 815,000 tons of iron ore in the state," says Dr. Solon Shedd of the State College of Washington geology department, speaking of the 25 iron deposits occurring in Washington, as described in the new bulletin on "Iron Ores, Fuels and Fluxes of Washington." "It is quite probable that there are nearly 3,000,000 tons available from all the deposits. There is a possibility that seven or eight million tons might be found to exist if intelligent mining were carried on to the limit. This is not enough iron ore, however, to maintain an iron or steel industry of any considerable size in the state of Washington.

"Of the 25 deposits, 16 are composed largely of magnetite, one of titaniferous magnetite (cemented 'black sand'), five of limonite (brown ore), two of hematite and one of pyrrhotite.

"The ores have originated in a number of different ways, which may be summarized as: (1) Sedimentary deposits; (2) residual deposits; (3) laterite deposits (part residual and part sedimentary); (4) replacements in limestones, probably from ascending solutions; (5) contact metamorphic deposits; and (6) magmatic segregation deposits.

"Since the iron ores in the state occur in such a variety of ways, the quality of the ores and the size of the ore bodies have no uniformity. Of these various types the contact metamorphic is the most usual, while the lateritic, subsequently metamorphosed, contained the deposit of greater size."

The most important iron ore, hematite, he says, is only sparingly represented in Washington, the best grade being found in Stevens county. The quality of iron ores in the state has generally been found fair, though a number of the ores have been too high in phosphorus content for use in making steel either by the Bessemer or the acid open hearth processes. They would still prove suitable, however, for use in open hearth or electric furnace work. High sulphur content disqualifies some of the ores for use in steel industries, but they might be of commercial importance if used for such special purposes as fluxes.

Without actually prospecting and drilling the various properties, it is impossible to determine how much iron ore there is in the state. Most of the deposits are irregular in shape and quite limited in size. A relative idea of the quantities of deposits is given in a table at the foot of the map pocketed at the back of the bulletin.

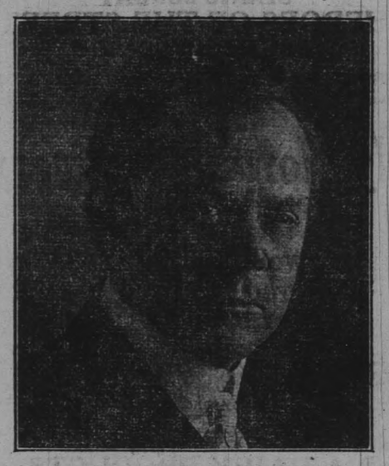
WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

The Great Physician and Healer is Present.



SCOTT ANDERSON

Invisible to men, He is establishing upon the earth the Kingdom of which He and every inspired prophet and apostle testified. The Scriptures are clear in their proclamation that this Kingdom which they heralded is a Gospel of Blessing for the vast majority of humankind, not a message of woe for all except a few. This great and marvelous Kingdom now being established is not a mysterious, intangible arrangement having no meaning for the toiler and the sufferer, but one which will bring such practical and understandable things as perfect and complete health, beautiful, happy and peaceful homes, luxuriant vegetation, sublime climate from pole to pole, righteous and just laws—world-wide—and greatest of all, unending life upon the earth.

Many people who are now living, by conforming their lives to the Laws of God and heeding the message of the hour—"Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand"—may continue to live through the present transition period when mankind passes from the thraldom of Satan's misrule to the glorious liberty of the Kingdom of God and these will actually never die.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much meat may produce kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so that it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithiawater drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Adv.

PRINTERS' LIST IS SUSPECTED OF GERMS

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 12.—A nation-wide scientific investigation to determine what part "printers' list" plays in the origin and aggravation of tuberculosis is contemplated by the International Typographical Union in connection with a general health survey now being made in the trade.

"List" is the black, grumous, woolly, fluffy substance, which collects in type boxes, trays, cases and chases. It contains silica and iron, and, according to a theory advanced by Dr. E. Halford Ross, eminent British scientist, acts as a causative agent to stir dormant tubercle bacillus into action. That germs of tuberculosis actually exist in a proportion of humanity without doing mischief, unless provoked by agencies outside themselves, is known.

Physicians have differed widely in discussing the probable degree of influence exercised by this printing shop dust on lungs of printers, but a thorough inquiry in the situation has never been made, notwithstanding that British authorities have long discussed the advisability of such research. Frederick L. Hoffman, insurance statistician directing the printing industry health survey, has recommended to the joint council of the American Printing Trades that the inquiry be made.

British opponents of Dr. Ross's theory, in attempting to exonerate "list," contend that "warm and stagnant atmosphere of the crowded quarters in which many printers labor," long hours which lower the workers' metabolism and vitality, and the tendency of printers to continue at their comparatively light tasks long after infection by disease, thus spreading the infection, are the chief reasons for prevalence of tuberculosis in the trade.

Co-operation between employers and printing operatives in America has worked great improvement in working conditions in recent years, according to Mr. Hoffman. Shorter hours have resulted in lengthening the average life of a printer. In 1900 the average age at death was 41.25. In 1921 it was 54.32. Conclusions reached in England, therefore, are not necessarily applicable here. Double shifts, for instance, are of rare occurrence in America.

An organized fight on tuberculosis and "dust phthisis" was begun in the printing trade in 1892, when the Union Printers' Home was established in Colorado Springs. The sanatorium there is at the service of members when the earliest symptoms of disease appear, so there is no reason for spread of tuberculosis by printers infected continuing among their fellow workmen.

Officials of the United States bureau of labor statistics and others interested in the printers' health survey believe that steps for prevention of tuberculosis are now in order.

As a means of fighting "list," Dr. Ross suggests that suction bellows should be used to keep shops free of the dust containing iron and silica. That method is now in use in some British shops.

In addition to the inquiry into outside agencies contributing to the spread of tuberculosis among printers, a correlative health education of members of the trade is planned by the International Typographical Union as one means of lessening the ravages of disease.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE GLUTTED REVENGE

When you have money in your clothes to spend
You know that everybody is your friend,
As long as you have got it and they laugh
At all your jokes because they think they have
To laugh at them and all the time you know
It's not you but your money makes them so.
And girls are apt to flatter you and say
How swell you look because they know that they
Will get a box of candy and you know
The world is full of sham and hollow show.

You are the captain of the baseball team
As long as you will buy the boys ice cream
And lend them ten cents sometimes when they're broke,
But if your money should go up in smoke
So that you couldn't buy things for the nine
You'd feel it was your duty to resign
Because they'd treat you cool and say that they Should have a baseball captain that could play,
And you would shed some bitter tears and go
Behind the fence and try to hide you woe.

But if some great misfortune came to you
And you should find one friend who was true blue,
You'd clasp him to your bosom awful tight
And say all is not lost; one ray of light
Remains and though it nearly broke your heart
To pay your debts you'd take another start
And when you made more money you would go
And organize another team you know,
To beat the life out of the team that threw
You down when your misfortune came to you.

"Talking about dinners," said the traveling salesman, "I remember one I had when I was on the road. I went into the best restaurant in the town with some fellow salesmen.

"We ordered the finest thing in dinners. Then the bill came round and we couldn't decide who was to pay. Everybody offered, and so did I."

"Awkward for you all," agreed one of the listeners skeptically.

"Yes," continued the salesman, "and, as we couldn't settle the matter, I proposed we should blindfold the waiter and the one he caught must pay."

"Good idea," said another listener. "Who did he catch?"

"I don't know," replied the salesman briefly, "but he hasn't caught me yet."

The meanest kind of a hypocrite is the man who praises the Lord and refuses to pay his debts.

WILL E. CHAPIN TO ADVISE ON ADVERTISING

To Lesture at Odd Fellows' Hall and Answer Questions

Will E. Chapin's lecture on "Art in Advertising," to be given in the Odd Fellows hall instead of the chamber of commerce auditorium as at first planned, this evening at 8 o'clock, should be well attended by the business men of this city, as they will thereby have an opportunity of hearing the fundamental principles that underlie all high class advertising expounded by an acknowledged expert of long experience.

All successful business is built up, today, on judicious advertising and fortunes are thrown away annually by those who do not understand how to spend their money in this direction.

Mr. Chapin's career has covered a long experience in the literary, artistic and business phases of this interesting subject, and what he has to say will be well worth listening to.

In answer to requests he will supplement his lecture with a "chalk talk" on character from a cartoonist's standpoint. This will especially interest the women. As Mr. Chapin made a national reputation as cartoonist for the Los Angeles "Times," this talk will prove of especial interest.

Through the courtesy of the realty board, this entertainment is free to the public.

When three or four women get together the silence becomes so thick that it cannot be heard.
